

Risk-based Design for Space Systems: Considerations for University Level Education

Tomasso Sgobba, International Association for the Advancement of Space Safety

“Risk-based Design for Space Systems”, as the key technique for embedding safety risk management in the design of space systems. Although the technique is widely used by major space design teams at NASA, including commercial vehicles, ESA, and JAXA there is no university education offer.